

smurp's blog

http://www.nooron.org/know/smurp_web_log

This is an example web log.

1. The web log entrys

Instances of `web_log_entry` are the posts in a blog.

1.1. A New Kind of Science

1.1.1. `web_log_text`

Hey Moses (er, Stephen) what are those tablets you're carrying?

1.1.2. `web_log_url`

<http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ASIN/1579550088>

1.2. Endurantism and Perdurantism: An Ongoing Debate

1.2.1. `web_log_text`

To think that these sorts of conversations are going on all the time!

1.2.2. `web_log_url`

<http://ontology.teknowledge.com:8080/rsigma/dialog-3d-4d.html>

1.3. A Permanent Flashlight, Finally

1.3.1. web_log_text

It's bright, it's blue, you shake it...

1.3.2. web_log_url

<http://www.excaliburelectronics.com/foreverflashl.html>

1.4. freaking insleepwently

1.4.1. web_log_text

How tired I must have been when I caught myself using the phrase "freaking insleepwently".

1.5. Libeskind's Architecture

1.5.1. web_log_text

Some quite amazing architecture.

1.5.2. web_log_url

<http://www.radio.cbc.ca/programs/ideas/libeskind/index.html>

<http://www.daniel-libeskind.com/>

1.6. glaminoes are not made of doss

1.6.1. web_log_text

The scene: family playing dominoes when someone drops a glass. Then I said: "That's why glaminoes aren't made of doss."

1.7. dadly mashing

1.7.1. web_log_text

Caffeination does not help.

1.8. Sail or Hotel, You Decide

1.8.1. web_log_text

Good heavens

1.8.2. web_log_url

<http://www.kapook.com/hilight/pichilight/385.html>

2. The web log categorys

Subclasses of 'web log category' are themselves classes which individual web log entries are instances of.

2.1. architecture

2.2. book

2.3. gear

2.4. marvel

2.5. spoonerism